

Code With Harry is a popular YouTube channel and online learning platform founded by Haris Khan, also known as Harry. He is a software engineer, web developer, and educator who teaches programming and related skills to people through his YouTube channel and online courses.

Early Life and Education

Harry was born in Rampur, Uttar Pradesh, India. He developed an interest in computers and technology from a young age and pursued his passion for programming. He completed his education at IIT Kharagpur with a Bachelor's degree in M Tech (M Tech) and BTech (B Tech).

Career

Harry started his career as a software engineer and web developer, working for various companies. He also did internships in several cities, including London, Taiwan, and Hong Kong. He later created his YouTube channel, Code With Harry, to share his knowledge and skills with others.

YouTube Channel

Code With Harry's YouTube channel has gained immense popularity, with over 2 million subscribers and millions of views. He primarily teaches programming languages such as Python, JavaScript, HTML, CSS, and more. His videos are known for being engaging, easy to understand, and concise.

Online Courses

Harry offers online courses on his website, covering a range of topics, including programming, web development, and digital marketing. His courses are designed to be beginner-friendly and cover topics such as Python, JavaScript, React, and more.

Personal Life

Harry is a private person and keeps his personal life out of the spotlight. He has not publicly disclosed his relationship status or family details.

Net Worth

According to various sources, Harry's net worth is estimated to be around ₹90 lakhs (approximately $120,000 USD) in 2021.

Interesting Facts

- Harry is an animal lover and has a cat as his favorite pet.
- He is a health-conscious individual and prioritizes his fitness.
- He has a travel bug and wants to travel the world.
- He has a strong online presence, with over 2 million subscribers on YouTube and thousands of followers on Instagram.

Overall, Code With Harry is a well-known and respected figure in the online learning community, known for his expertise in programming and web development. His YouTube channel and online courses have helped thousands of people learn new skills and pursue their passions in the tech industry.